Profile

You may see her in the Leadership Center in the Student Union. You may see her at her sorority house. You may see her at the business building.

Mallory Floyd is as humble as you can get. You will see her all over the Arkansas State campus because she is involved with campus organizations, Greek life and her major.

“I love being so involved because it gives me something to do, it’s a way to give back to my university and to help other students and be a mentor,” Floyd said.

As a Criminology and Sociology major graduating this Dec., she spends a lot of time in the business building as well as the humanities building. She is currently vice president of the Criminology, Sociology and Geography club. Last year, she held the office of Public Relations Representative for the CSG club. For her major, Floyd is a member of Alpha Phi Sigma and Alpha Kappa Delta Honor Societies. She is secretary of the Pre-Law Club, which entails her going to law school after she graduates.

Alpha Omicron Pi sorority is another place Floyd is active in. Historian and philanthropy chair are the offices that Floyd has held. Whitney, Floyd's adviser, said, "In the past year that I have been Mallory's advisor, I have been able to see what a great leader she is, not only for AOII, but also in multiple on campus organizations. Mallory volunteers a lot of her time to on campus organizations and the community. She is an amazing leader and a very caring young lady. Mallory has been Philanthropy Chair for AOII for the past year. In that year, she has organized several events that have exceeded my expectations to raise money for arthritis research and a local family. It takes a great leader to organize events for hundreds of people and get the results she has gotten."

Among other achievements, Floyd is a Senator for Student Government Association, Co-Spirit Chair for Student Activities Board, Co-Philanthropy Chair for Rotaract Club, an A-State Representative, an A-State Alumni Social Media Adviser, a Gamma Chi for Sorority Recruitment 2014 and Head Gamma Chi for Sorority Recruitment 2015. She participated in United We Dance and Volunteer A-State. Habitat for Humanity Club and the Ultimate Frisbee Club, Floyd is also a member of.

Meg Morgan, an Alpha Omicron Pi sister of Floyd, said, "Mallory is involved in so much, our chapter is so proud of her."

Floyd mentioned she just got her subscription for the Arkansas State Alumni Association Club. She really is a student leader at Arkansas State University. She is currently still deciding on which law school she will be attending.
